

Language And Liberation: Creole Language Politics In The Caribbean

THE ORAL PRESENTATION

This activity is designed to:

- a) help you more closely focus broad aspects of the lectures on language
- b) to help you learn presentation skills which you will need for other courses and may need at work.
- c) provide you with an opportunity to work collaboratively.

TOPICS FOR THE ORAL PRESENTATION:

1. Language as a Political Issue/Language Rights
2. Language in Education
3. Neuro-linguistics
4. Language and Gender
5. Language and Social Mobility
6. Language and History

SOME BOOKS WHICH YOU MAY WANT TO USE TO BEGIN RESEARCH FOR YOUR PRESENTATION:

Roberts, Peter. West Indians and their Language
Fromkein, Victoria and Robert Rodman: Language : An Introduction
Christie, Pauline: Caribbean Language Issues: Old and New
Devonish, Hubert: Language and Liberation : Creole Language Politics in the Caribbean

You will be penalized if you restrict your research to only these books and you will also be penalized if you use any book written primarily for students below the tertiary level.

STEPS FOR PREPARING AN ORAL PRESENTATION

Before you can pass a message along to others, it must be clear in your own mind. Writing is an essential part of preparing for your presentation. First, brainstorm the topic, analyze your audience, and create a thesis statement. Then, take good research notes, develop an organizational outline, and draft an introduction and conclusion. Finally prepare a presentation outline or index cards.

Topic

Select a topic you care about. Choose one that you either know a lot about or can learn a lot about in the time you have to prepare. Make sure your topic can be handled well within the time constraints of the presentation itself.
